WHY SHOULD MY CAT BE TESTED?

What is Feline Leukemia?

Feline leukemia is a cancerous disease caused by the feline leukemia virus (FeLV). FeLV causes diseases other than leukemia including immunodeficiency and additional cancers. Cats may not start to show signs of the disease for months or years after being infected with FeLV. Infection with FeLV is a major cause of illness and death in domestic cats.

Feline Leukemia can cause:

- ▶ Immunodeficiency
- ▶ Anemia
- ▶ Immune-mediated diseases
- ▶ Reproductive problems
- ▶ Gastrointestinal disease
- ▶ Neurologic disease
- ▶ Platelet disorders
- ▶ Lymphadenopathy (enlarged lymph nodes)
- ▶ Neoplasia (cancer)

What is FIV?

Feline immunodeficiency virus (FIV) causes an infectious disease in domestic cats and cheetahs similar to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) in humans. It attacks and weakens the body's immune system, making the animal susceptible to infections and diseases that don't affect healthy cats. There is no cure for FIV. Though eventually fatal, an FIV-positive cat can live for many years without any signs of illness.

Cats don't get heartworm disease.

☐ Grounded or ☒ Unfounded?

FACT: Cats DO get heartworm disease.

Although heartworm infection is diagnosed more often in dogs, studies show unprotected cats are vulnerable too. Keeping cats indoors is not enough to prevent cats from being bitten by mosquitoes that carry heartworms.

Cases of feline heartworm disease have been reported in all 50 US states. No approved medical treatment is available for cats, and the disease can be fatal.

BEST STRATEGY: A safe, effective 12-month prevention program.

Protection is priceless.

Choose year-round heartworm prevention for your pet.

Dangers of Fleas & Ticks

Fleas

Fleas can be carriers of worms and diseases. In some cases pets can be allergic. For instance- flea saliva is one of the most allergenic substances known to man. One in ten cats and dogs will suffer from a skin condition known as Flea-Allergy Dermatitis. This is a direct result of their sensitivity to flea bites. The symptoms of flea allergies are major skin irritation and hair loss. All it takes is one bite for an allergic reaction to occur. Repeated flea bites not only cause discomfort for your pets- heavy infestations can lead to iron deficiency and even death in very young puppies and kittens.

Ticks

Ticks can directly cause illness and disease in you and your pet. Some examples are Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. Lyme disease is spreading rapidly. North Carolina has multiple reported cases of both Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. It's risky to allow these pests to hitch rides on the family pet.

EVERY TWO SECONDS...

A FAMILY PET IS LOST OR STOLEN.

Unfortunately most of them will never make it home.

We suggest that all of our clients have their pets permanently identified with a microchip. Unlike ID tags that are worn on your pet's collar, microchips are injected underneath the skin, and can NOT be removed. Each chip has its own individual, "one-of-a-kind" number that will identify him for the rest of his life through a 24/7 Global Recovery System.

We proudly use Microchip Identification Systems. Trusted since 1989.

Would you like to give your pet the lifetime protection of an AVID microchip for an additional $25.00 today?

If so, would you like to prepay for the registration fee for $15.00?

Got Pain Meds?

We recommend that ALL patients go home with pain medication to help aid in their recovery after surgery; however, it is NOT required. Your pet will receive an injection of pain medicine just before their surgery to keep them comfortable while they are here. If you need something to relieve their pain after you take them home, we do offer take-home pain medication for an additional cost.
